The purpose of this investigation was to determine if normal periprostatic fascia and its subcutaneous connections will block or prevent ejaculation in rhesus monkeys. Sixteen sexually experienced male rhesus monkeys were used in this study. After a sexual receptivity period of four or more weeks, a previously adapted micro-injection procedure for ejaculation induction was used. In each of the 16 monkeys, the implanted cannula was used to introduce a short-length (2-4 cm) of the periprostatic fascia from the dorsal penile fascia, into the membranous

Praise: Ismail S. (alive on ym.com): Thank you very much for making this patch! I am french and therefore I need this for my school career, so it can't be found in france. I have a request. I would like to make "to" and "from" text fields in order to have a big text in the text field instead of the text in a small field. I hope I'm not the only one who wants this feature because it's quite useful. Thanks again, -Ismail S.
